6. Short summary of the project (max. 100 words)

Initiative Dawn is the overall project for Police region Stockholm, and includes project IGOR. By using methods and checklists like "A developed best way of working" (described in another newsletter), working together in collaboration with other societal actors, have sufficient and retain resources, working with our norms and attitudes and using evidence, the chance of later prosecution may increase. In addition, the cycle of violence may be interrupted prior to more violent, sometimes lethal (homicide) actions by the perpetrator.

Project IGOR consists of both internal and external parts which forms a good structure working against IPV. The operational group, which consists of two social secretaries (from the relationship violence team social service Södermalm), and four police officers. The project only covers crimes involving men's violence against women in the district of Södermalms social services administration and the Södermalm local police area. The IGOR-group work with several different operational measures against perpetrators of violence and for victims of violence, for example outreach activities, interviews, reconnaissance, mapping, training, information campaigns, different kind of support and internal and external collaboration.

Increase good and sustainable collaboration between social services and the police.

7. Project description

Initiative Dawn is a long-term investment and a permanent part of Police Region Stockholm. The initiatives main objective is intimate partner violence, rape and sexual offenses against children, and focuses on areas like resource, cooperation and method.

Initiativ Dawn is permanented in Police Region Stockholm.

The IGOR project is planned to run for one year and will be evaluated on the basis of a project plan with a number of indicators and project goals. The project hopes to find good methods that prevent men's violence against women.
