

The main aim of project was crime prevention and elimination of anti-social behavior in conduct of events in big EU cities. Negative social phenomena that accompany events, pose significant threats to public safety and order. All planned activities were aimed to exchange experiences and develop new methods for improving efficiency of police and other relevant actors in the prevention and combating of crime resulting from organization of events. Project was conducted, based on a multi-faceted 3 day seminar in Warsaw and in partners countries with participation of relevant experts in security issues of events and government institutions and NGOs. Project activities provide(in the last day of seminar)performance of workshops-outdoor activities aimed at presentation or simulation activities related to safety. Methods of training and workshops were chosen in such a way as to be able to apply it in each partner country. Workshops were held with obligatory participation of institutions that organize various public events. Issue of appropriate security of events is very complex and specific, which makes the involvement of many institutions. 15 officers from Berlin, Bratislava, Vilnius who, every day deal with security issues, prevention, diagnosis and development of pseudo-fans environments participated in the project. Each of officers selected to participate has extensive experience in this field, allowing for maximum use of project results, both in terms of obtaining information, as well as their implementation and forward to its staff. Project took 12 months. The results undoubtedly had impact on raising level of security of events and on raising awareness among potential participants. Seminar and workshop in: Applicant and Partner institutions serve as an excellent tool to facilitate implementation of activities as well as mechanisms for their improvement. After completion of training and workshop, training post seminar materials were developed and printed and they are used and will be used in prevention meetings for children and youth in proper attitudes of cheering and awareness of mainly young people about the legal consequences. WMP with project partners prepared a website for public where they can find out about upcoming events in cities and find links to website of organizers of such events. Dissemination of "soft" results such as acquired new knowledge, good practice were implemented in all police units during the planned training and severance regarding preparations for the event. Results were disseminated during prevention meetings with youth in sports clubs, schools, universities. Post seminar materials were distributed to all Regional Headquarters in Poland, to sport clubs, other institutions that organize events.
